Mark Simons - Biography

Born into a family of musicians, Mark Simons was surrounded by classical music throughout his childhood. He studied classical music at Marianopolis College, McGill and Temple Universities, and then continued developing his expertise in different styles of music including modern, baroque, jazz and klezmer. His passion for chamber music has led to collaborations with many Canadian string quartets including Arthur Leblanc, Bozzini and Alcan. He has also performed with the Casal Quartet from Switzerland and has worked regularly with the Daponte String Quartet in the United States. He recently toured eastern Canada with soprano Suzie Leblanc and pianist, Robert Kortgaard.
